

The First Shady Trails Reunion

For 63 years Shady Trails was a magical camp for children with speech and hearing challenges. Located a few miles outside of Northport, Michigan, campers and staff would gather each summer first for 8 weeks and later for 2 weeks for speech therapy, but MUCH more than that. The camp was a life-changing experience for thousands of campers and staff who came from around the United States.

On the weekend of 11 August 2012, a Shady Trails speech improvement camp reunion was held at the old camp location at 6880 N. Shady Trails, Northport, MI 49670. The reunion was organized by the tireless co-chairs:

Howard Hodges and Jim Emery

Still called “Shady Trails” the camp is now being used for 4 weeks each summer as a day camp for children.

The screenshot shows the homepage of the Shady Trails Camp website. At the top, the title "SHADY TRAILS CAMP" is displayed in a blue serif font against a green background with a small tree icon. Below the title is a dark blue navigation bar with white text links: HOME, ABOUT US, PROGRAMS, FORMS, FAQ, EMPLOYMENT, PHOTOS, AREA INFO, CONTACT, and MEMBER PASSWORD REQUEST. The main content area features a collage of photos: a girl archery, a girl in a colorful hat, and a group of three girls smiling. A text overlay on the photos reads "SUMMER CAMP 2012! REGISTER NOW". Below the photos is a large orange section with the word "WELCOME" in white. To the left of the text is a white silhouette of a Christmas tree. The text in the orange section reads: "Shady Trails is a summer day camp located on Grand Traverse Bay near the village of Northport. Our mission is to provide enjoyable learning experiences and recreational activities for children in a natural setting. Please use our site to learn more about our camp, our many programs and the beautiful Leelanau County area. View our Welcome Song [643 KB Quicktime Movie]". To the right of this text is a blue box with white text: "SHADY TRAILS SPEECH CAMP REUNION" and a link "click here for details". Below the orange section is a green footer with white text: "SHADY TRAILS CAMP || 6880 N. But the “old Shady Trails” is also being wonderfully preserved and remembered!

Former Shady Trail speech therapy campers talk it up at reunion

By Patti Brandt
Of The Enterprise staff

You would never know the group of men gathered at Shady Trails Camp on Saturday were afraid to talk when they were children.

Now you can't get them to stop talking, especially when it comes to how much the Northport camp helped them to get over their stuttering. About 45 former campers and counselors recently gathered there for a two-day reunion.

"It taught me how to relax and taught me how to speak fluently," said Mark Stinger, of Philadelphia, who was at the camp from 1960-63. "It was a wonderful program. It was a fabulous experience for boys and I wish it was still here."

The camp was founded in 1932 by John Clancy, who was a stutterer, as a summer program for boys with speech and language impairments. Back then campers slept in tents. It moved to its present 26-acre location just south of Northport in 1947, and now has 27 buildings. In 1949 the camp was purchased by the University Of Michigan and became the University of Michigan Speech Camp. Clancy, who had earned a master's degree in speech correction, was the camp's director.

The camp was mostly staffed by graduate students from the University of the program, which was focused and delivered in a controlled environment, often did the trick.

"A great majority of the kids would leave the camp fluent," said Ash learning to relax his stomach muscles, which would click up when he tried to talk, making communication nearly impossible. Barresi's stutter plagued him throughout his life until he retired.

SHADY TRAILS

1974

MARINE INCINERATION

Campers and staff will watch the "Fire on the Water" together, in silence, from the shore. In this, the most serious moment of the camp season, each of us will be united with all of the campers and staff, past and present, who have put something of themselves into a summer at Shady Trails.

From opposite ends of camp, two runners bearing torches will come together and ignite a flaming beacon on the bay. As the torches come down the paths, they gather from each of us a spark until, in the fire on the water, the spark becomes a flame. In the flame each of us will see a different thing... perhaps the desire of one person to help another... perhaps recollections of past failures and expectations of future successes...perhaps the efforts of those who have gone before us to leave something behind for those who will follow...perhaps a bright light surrounded by darkness and unknown...perhaps only our dreams.

"A FIRE ON THE WATER"

PURPOSE

Not long ago a young man sat out on the dock late in the evening and thought...a fire on the water. This man was, and still is, a big part of Shady Trails Camp. Let us try to recapture some of the thoughts that might have been running through his mind that night.

Perhaps he thought of the weeks that had passed at camp and of the fellows who had failed to grasp the opportunity that was theirs. Perhaps he was impressed with another man's wish to help others and make it become a reality. Perhaps he was just dreaming that night and felt the spirit of all the old campers crowd in upon him and wanted to capture that moment...wanted to remember all their hopes and dreams. Perhaps he thought of his experiences with these young men and their problems. Perhaps he thought of the beautiful memories of camp at the end of another season. Maybe he just wanted to see a fire on the water.

This man was Mr. William Bilto. All of us know him only by the plaque located on the edge of the Athletic Field which bears his name. He spent a good number of years here helping to build and strengthen the camp. Camp will soon be coming to a close, and we will be returning to our homes and friends.

Now, as then, we pause to reflect...

Did a
job!!

Although on Sunday we left Shady Trails once again, we left it in the very capable hands of the Shady Trails manager, Jack Moorlag, who also knows and appreciates the magic that is Shady Trails, and loves it as much as we do! Thank you, Jack for welcoming us and for being there!

Jack also promised to display a plaque about “our”
Shady Trails to help former campers find us!
